

Setting Up Artemis

Your in-server gift card shop — live in under 5 minutes.

Step 1 — Install the Bot

Open the link below in your browser to add Artemis to your server. Select your server from the dropdown, click Authorize, and do not change any of the default permission settings.

https://discord.com/oauth2/authorize?client_id=1414466801852481606

Note: Discord allows a maximum of 50 bots per server. If you see an error during installation, you've likely hit this limit. Remove an unused bot from your server first, then try adding Artemis again.

Step 2 — Create the Shop Channel

Create a new text channel with the exact name shown below. Place it under one of the top 2 categories in your server's channel list so members can find it easily.

Channel name: Artemis-Shop

Tip: Copy-paste the channel name exactly as shown — the bot matches on this specific name and formatting.

Step 3 — Set Channel Permissions

Open the channel settings for Artemis-Shop. Navigate to Permissions > @everyone > Advanced and enable these three permissions:

ON	Send Messages
ON	Send Messages in Thread
ON	Use Application Commands

Step 4 — Run Setup Commands

Type the following slash commands in your server. For /adminchannel, /adminsupport, and /adminannouncements, select the Artemis-Shop channel when prompted.

Command	What It Does
<code>/adminchannel</code>	Manage channels where users can use application commands.
<code>/adminsupport</code>	Set the channel in which support tickets will be created.
<code>/adminsupportteam</code>	Assign one or more members for assistance in support threads.
<code>/adminannouncements</code>	Manage channels where purchase messages will appear.

Support Team: For `/adminsupportteam`, you can add your own moderators or staff. If you'd also like dedicated support from Athena, send a Discord friend request to anmol_80114 (Artemis_Anmol) — he can be added as a support team member in your server and will help manage customer queries directly.

You're all set!

Your in-server gift card shop is now live. Members can start browsing and purchasing right away.
